Leadership and management in healthcare

Neil Gopee and Jo Galloway.
2nd ed, 2014.

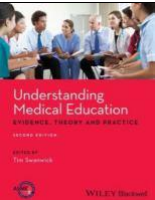

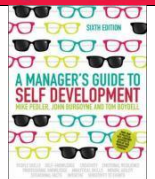

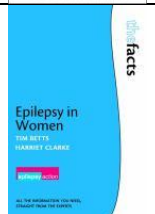

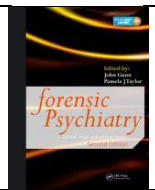

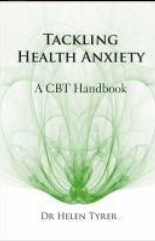

In the second edition of this best-selling practical text, Neil Gopee and Jo Galloway focus squarely on the essential leadership and management skills that newly-qualified health and social care professionals need to develop early on in their careers. Drawing on the most up-to-date policies and professional regulations, and with an emphasis on the provision of person-centred care, the authors - both of whom have backgrounds in clinical practice, education and management - show how these skills can be applied across a range of situations in everyday practice. Chapters recognise the challenges facing newly-qualified health and social care professionals, and cover, for example: - The effective organisation of day to day health and social care - Managing resources - Decision-making skills - Managing and leading change - Supporting the development of colleagues - Patient/service user involvement Theory is related clearly to practice through a range of case studies, while action points and good-practice guidelines challenge the reader to apply the knowledge they have learned from working through the chapters to their own personal experiences. [Publishers information]
