SPECIAL EDITION 2008-2009 DONOR REPORT

The Keystone Tradition:
The vision of the founders is still alive today

Keystone College, 1946

Dr. Edward G. Boehm, Jr.,
President

Dear Friends of Keystone College:

I continually marvel at the beauty of Keystone College. No matter what season of the year, our campus is always alive with the best of what Mother Nature has to offer.

I can't help but wonder how the founders of Keystone College viewed this beautiful landscape over 140 years ago when they created Keystone Academy as the only high school between Scranton, Pa., and Binghamton, N.Y. I find myself in awe of the tremendous desire they must have had to plant the seeds for a great educational institution and then watch those seeds blossom in the coming decades.

Since our founding, we've journeyed from Keystone Academy to Scranton-Keystone Junior College to Keystone Junior College and finally to Keystone College. Along the way, thousands of graduates have walked on stage to receive their degrees and have gone on to become leaders in their professions and their communities.

This issue of the Keystoneian/Donor Report focuses on the true meaning of the Keystone Tradition. I think each one of us may have his or her own perspective on what it means to be a Keystoneian. But I also believe there are certain core values we all share. Civility toward each other, curiosity to discover those things we do not know, and the never-ending quest to use our skills and talents to make our world a better place are virtues that unite all of us. Certainly, those ideals served as the foundation for Keystone Academy when it was created in 1868 and remain with us today.

As our College continues to grow and prosper in the years to come, it is important for us to remember and to practice the values we have held for so long. I believe that is the Keystone Tradition we all will share.

Sincerely,

Dear Friends:

The Keystone Tradition. Those three words say a great deal about the past, present, and future of Keystone College.

Of course, we are well aware that the Keystone Tradition began in 1868 with the founding of Keystone Academy. The tradition continued as Keystone steadily progressed to become Keystone Junior College then Keystone College in 1995, granting its first baccalaureate degree four years later.

Today, Keystone stands as an educational leader in Northeastern Pennsylvania, known for its ability to prepare students not only for successful careers but meaningful lives. Our students demonstrate their excellence both in the classroom and in the community through a variety of internships, experiential learning activities, and community service projects. They demonstrate that true leaders are those who dedicate themselves not only to their own accomplishments but to the well-being of others.

One of the greatest examples of the Keystone Tradition lies in the tremendous financial commitment demonstrated each year by our alumni, family, and friends. As more people discover all that Keystone offers, the number of donors who support our work continues to grow.

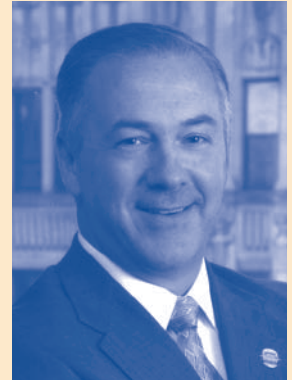

In fiscal year 2008-2009, 2,363 donors contributed to our College, an all-time record and an increase of 30.6 percent from last year. During the past two years, we experienced 41.9 percent increase in donor participation. In these difficult economic times, this type of financial support shows the outstanding enthusiasm so many people have for Keystone College.

As a member of the Keystone community, you can play a pivotal role in creating a brighter future for our students. I thank you for your past contributions and ask for your ongoing support. Together, we can ensure the Keystone Tradition will continue for generations to come.

Sincerely,

William H. Bender

The Keystone Tradition: The vision of the founders are still alive in today's world

Visitors to the Keystone College campus often remark that Harris Hall, standing majestically atop a hill on the eastern edge of campus, represents the very essence of our College. Keystone's motto, "Progress Through Effort" seems to echo from every brick in the venerable four-story structure.

In many ways, Harris Hall, the original building on campus, really does tell the story of the Keystone Tradition, a legacy that is as much alive today as it was when the cornerstone was laid in September, 1870, honoring John Howard Harris, Keystone's first president.

Vision of the Founders

In 1868, the founders of Keystone Academy – as the College was originally named – sought to make their community a better and more progressive place by establishing the first high school between Scranton, Pa., and Binghamton, N.Y. in the basement of the Factoryville Baptist Church.

Keystone Academy was destined to be a place of learning, where commitment to excellence and dedication to community were fundamental priorities. Providing a quality education to every single student and treating each person with civility, dignity, and respect would be the guiding principle.

In 1870, ground was broken for Main Hall, later named Harris Hall. Two years later, the first diploma was awarded to Edith Brundage. Keystone Academy became Scranton-Keystone Junior College in 1934 and then, 10 years later, the name changed to Keystone Junior College. The first associate degree was awarded to A. Llewellyn Baer in 1936.

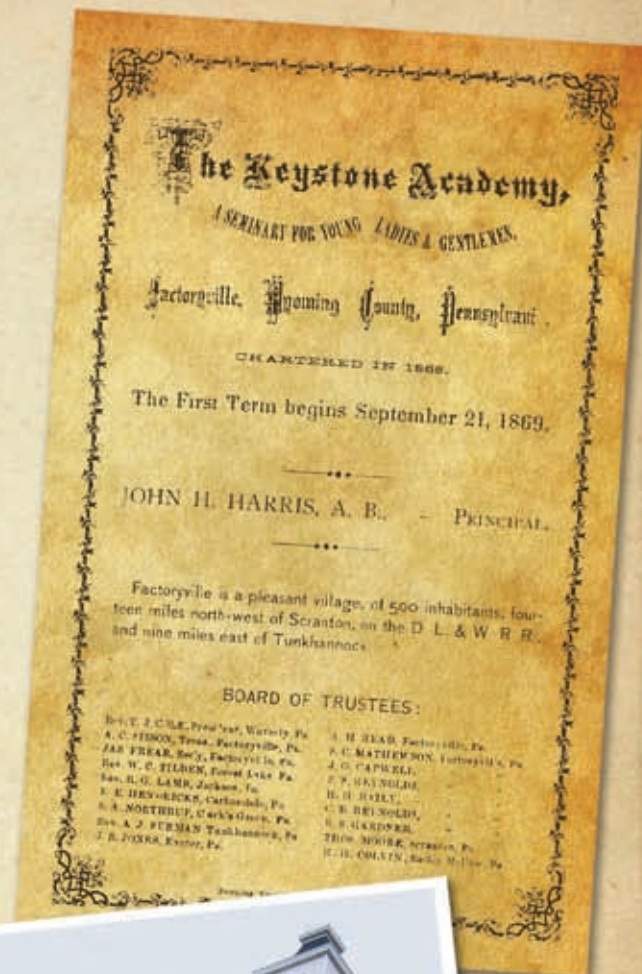

In 1995, Keystone Junior College became Keystone College. Three years later, the College received approval to offer baccalaureate degrees. In May of 2000, the College's first baccalaureate degree, a bachelor of science in criminal justice, was proudly presented to Stacy Lynn Davis.

Keystone has grown in many ways since those early days. Our campus, widely respected as one of the most picturesque in Northeastern Pennsylvania, consists of 37 buildings, including seven original Victorian homes, on 270 wooded acres.

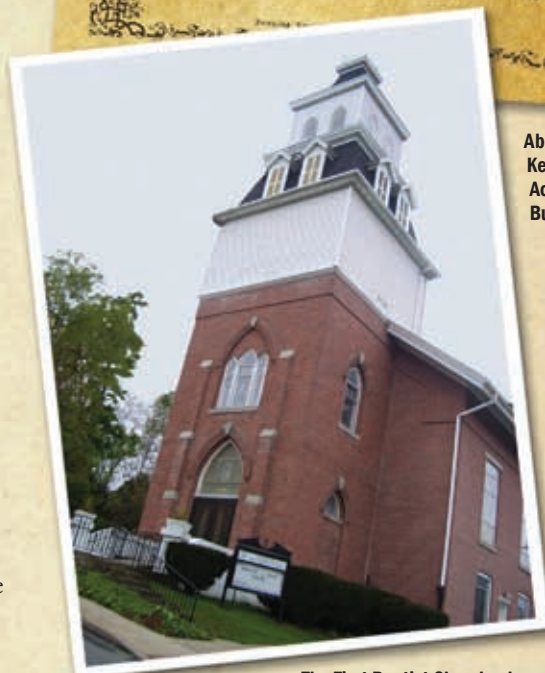

We have continued to expand during the nine years since we awarded our first baccalaureate degree. The College added 20 baccalaureate programs to complement our associate degree programs and our total enrollment has expanded to over 1,700 students, including those in our Towanda and Delaware Valley Centers.

"I often tell the story about the founding and the history of Keystone College," says Keystone President Dr. Edward G. Boehm, Jr. "I intend those stories to be more than just a recitation of dates and times. They are meant to help us remember who we are and what we are about. I want everyone to know the mission of our founders is alive and well in the 21st century. Our goal is to carry on the legacy they began nearly 150 years ago."

The vision of Keystone's founders continues to be a dynamic work in progress, as much alive today as it was in the years immediately following the Civil War. Their goals and values still stand as strong and solid as the bricks in Harris Hall.

The First Baptist Church, above, still stands and is very much a part of the local community.

The Keystone Tradition

As President Boehm notes, the Keystone Tradition is alive in many ways and represents the efforts of those who have come before us and those who are here today. It is a story about people – the students, faculty, staff, alumni, trustees, friends and families that have proudly represented our College through the years. Virtually everyone has his or her own feelings about what the Keystone Tradition means.

“To me, Keystone College means a sense of community, a feeling that this is a special place,” says Keystone Professor Howard Jennings, who has served the College for 42 years, longer than any other current full-time faculty member.

“I think it’s about commitment. We take pride in our work and do what needs to be done. It’s not about making a lot of money, it’s about dedication. You truly see yourself in a special place and you want to make a difference in people’s lives.”

That’s exactly what Professor Jennings has done for over four decades, serving as a biology instructor and with several Keystone-affiliated organizations such as Youth Conservation Corps, the Pocono Environmental Education Center, the Nokomis Summer Program, and the Keystone College Environmental Education Institute.

“When I came here, we truly believed we were the finest two-year college in the United States. Now, I see the tremendous strides we have taken and the tremendous potential we have as a four-year college,” he says.

For retired Professor Tom Cupillari '60, who joined the College’s faculty in 1965, the Keystone tradition means a legacy of service to students.

“When I think about the Keystone Tradition, the first thing that comes to my mind is opportunity. The opportunity to provide an education to young people between Scranton and Binghamton was the idea behind the founding of the College. The decision to become Keystone Junior College presented another type of opportunity as did the decision to become a four year school in 1995. Throughout the entire time, we’ve given opportunities to our students to obtain a college education and build better lives,” he says. “We’ve always cared deeply about our kids. I know that it’s a cliché to say that but there’s a lot of truth to it.”

Family Matters

The Keystone family. That's a phrase that has meant something to Keystoneans for generations. There is a sense that despite our individual differences or opinions, we will treat each other with dignity and respect. That too, is part of the Keystone tradition.

But there is another aspect of the Keystone Tradition. Many graduates have several generations of family members who have attended Keystone. Husbands, wives, fathers, sons, mothers, daughters, and grandchildren continue the Keystone Tradition year after year, decade after decade. In addition to a quality education, they realize that being a part of the Keystone family has become an essential part of their own family.

"Whether we've been known as Keystone Academy, Keystone Junior College or Keystone College, there's an incredibly strong tradition here. I think that quality education is alive and well at Keystone today just as it was when I went there," said Tom Davis '52, who has served as a member of Keystone's Board of Trustees since 1962.

The Davis family is a perfect example of how the Keystone Tradition has been honored by several generations of family members. Tom's mother, Esther Jones, graduated from Keystone Academy in 1922 and his father, Willard Jones, also took courses at the College. Tom's wife, Charlotte Davis, is a Keystone alumna, having graduated in 1953. The couple's son, James, graduated from Keystone in 1979 and daughter Lisa Davis, graduated from Keystone in 1985. James is currently a member of Keystone's President's Advisory Council. Tom and Charlotte's grandchildren, Delia O'Malley and Ethan Davis, are current students at Keystone. Tom and Charlotte also sponsor the Thomas W. and Charlotte M. Davis Scholarship at Keystone.

"Members of my family have gone to Keystone and I wanted to keep that tradition alive," says Delia, a sophomore from Factoryville who transferred to Keystone after spending her freshman year at a college in New York. "Keystone is such a welcoming place and it's nice to know that so many people in my family and in the community have gone to school here. I feel like I'm just carrying on their legacy."

But the Davis' are not alone. Other families date back to the very early years of the College. Bre Reynolds serves as a Senior Admissions Counselor at Keystone and is a member of the College's Alumni Association Board of Directors. She graduated from Keystone in 2004 and is married to Martin Reynolds, whose ancestors, along with the Capwell family, played a key role in the founding and development of Keystone College.

In fact, Frear-Reynolds Residence Hall takes the latter half of its name from Charles B. Reynolds, one of the College's founding members. The Reynolds family continues to be very involved with Keystone College in a variety of volunteer and fund-raising capacities.

"I really take a sense of pride in what the College means and what it represents," says Bre. "The fact that I work here and I graduated from Keystone means a lot to me. Also, the fact that my husband's family has been so involved with Keystone for so many years makes Keystone even more special to me."

Bre's father-in-law, Factoryville resident Paul Reynolds, feels exactly the same way. Paul's two sisters, Keystone Alumni Association Board Member Julie Feeny '57 and Sarah Conly, '66, are Keystone alumnae and Sarah's son, Kenneth Conly graduated from Keystone in 1993. Paul's cousin, Laura Reynolds Warnken, graduated from the College in 1967 and her husband, John, graduated the same year. Laura's father, Harold "Alvie" Reynolds graduated from Keystone Academy in 1916 and, at the time of his death, was Keystone's oldest living alumnus.

"When I think of the Keystone Tradition, I think of all the graduates who went on to do great things," Laura says. "The College enabled so many people to move on and prove themselves in the world."

As a longtime member of the Factoryville community, Paul Reynolds says he too is well aware of the Keystone tradition and what it means to residents of the Factoryville area. Paul and his wife, Lynn, played a valuable role in representing Keystone by serving as co-chairs of the 2008 Keystone Open Golf Tournament.

"I grew up on the other side of the (Nokomis) creek from Keystone. In a sense, the campus was my playground as a kid," Paul says. "The College is important to the community and I've always tried to stay involved, whether it's by helping with the golf tournament or by donating money. No matter what I've done, Keystone has always been a part of my life. To me, it really is a special place."

Keystone College Offers New Degree in Psychology

Dr. Patty Fox will be the first one to tell you there's a lot more you can do with a psychology degree than becoming a psychologist.

The value of a psychology degree has increased in recent years, making those who major in psychology in college more valuable in the public and private sectors. That's why Keystone College has introduced a new bachelor of arts in psychology degree to all current and incoming students.

The new degree, which has been approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, is designed to prepare students for advanced education in the field of psychology and prepare them for a variety of careers in areas such as education, law, or business.

"Increasingly, employers are seeking workers who not only have the necessary technical skills to fill a particular position, but also have broad-based skills in other areas as well," said Dr. Fox, an assistant professor of psychology at Keystone. "A degree in psychology demonstrates that a student has analytical skills and an understanding of human nature as well. Those types of abilities help make psychology graduates successful in a wide variety of fields."

Dr. Fox explained Keystone decided to offer the new degree because high school students and current students continued to show an interest in psychology.

"Students continue to realize that psychology is an interesting and useful major. Obtaining a bachelor's degree in psychology prepares you for further study in graduate school but also prepares you for the workforce," she said.

Current Keystone students Gina Osif and Mara Stucker are switching their majors to psychology for exactly those reasons.

"I've really enjoyed all the psychology classes I've taken so I've decided I want that to be my major," says Ms. Stucker, a junior from Tunkhannock who had majored in social sciences. "For me, graduate school is a possibility but I also know there are other things I can do with a psychology degree as well."

Ms. Osif, a junior from Montdale, switched to psychology from elementary education.

"I just found psychology much more interesting and I think I'll have a variety of options in choosing a career or in attending graduate school," she said.

No matter what students decide to do with their lives, a background in psychology can help them in the long run, Dr. Fox said.

"As time goes on and more students become interested, we're definitely planning on expanding the program. But for now, we want students considering Keystone College to know they can enroll in a quality psychology program that emphasizes small classes and individual attention," she said.

Keystone College Ranked in U.S. News and World Report "America's Best Colleges" Listings

Keystone College is ranked in the latest issue of U.S. News and World Report as one of the "Best Baccalaureate Colleges" in the nation and is recognized for small class sizes. This marks the third consecutive time Keystone has been recognized in the magazine's annual listings of "America's Best Colleges."

The College ranked in the top five for "Highest Proportion of Classes Under 20"

Visiting Chef Series Continues at Keystone College

Chef Mark J. Muszynski

For the fourth consecutive year, connoisseurs of fine dining had the opportunity to watch one of the culinary profession's most respected chefs in action as Keystone College hosted its Visiting Chef Series this fall.

Chef Mark J. Muszynski, owner of Curious Goods at the Bake Oven Inn in Germansville, Pa. took center stage as he shared some of his most popular recipes with members of the Keystone community and the public.

Chef Muszynski demonstrated culinary skills, techniques, and recipes based on his "farm to table philosophy" during a public demonstration.

Chef Muszynski and Keystone culinary arts students also prepared a delicious five-course tasting menu for guests in Evans Hall, preceded by a wine and cheese reception held in Keystone's Chef's Table Restaurant.

After nearly 20 years of working as an executive chef in some of Philadelphia's finest restaurants, Chef Muszynski and his wife, Catherine, ventured out on their own in 2008 to open Curious Goods at the Bake Oven Inn, located in the middle of Lehigh County's scenic farm and horse country. Specializing in his own "farm to table" menu, Chef Muszynski has cultivated relationships with more than 20 local farmers and butchers to create a menu focusing on seasonal ingredients combined with classic technique. He has won numerous local and state awards for culinary excellence and has been featured regularly in the Philadelphia media.

For his dinner at Keystone, Chef Muszynski prepared such favorites as sautéed Pocono trout, jumbo lump crab meat, roasted pork loin and a variety of other culinary classics capped off by a delicious pear upside-down cake for dessert.

Keystone's Visiting Chef Series is underwritten by Sodexo, which provides food and facilities management services at the College. Proceeds from the event benefited the Keystone College Culinary Department.

in the north, a key criteria used for judging the colleges. Keystone was also ranked in the fourth tier of the "Best Baccalaureate Colleges" in the north.

"The news that Keystone College has been listed in U.S. News & World Report as one of the best baccalaureate colleges in the nation and recognized for our small class sizes is a great accomplishment for the entire Keystone community," said Keystone College President Dr. Edward G. Boehm, Jr. "This achievement recognizes the tremendous dedication and commitment to excellence by our faculty, our administration, our staff, and, of course, our students, who worked so hard to make Keystone a strong and growing college for the future."

Keystone Student's Artwork Displayed at Pittsburgh International Airport

Keystone College senior Keith Garubba's art career is off to a flying start. Keith's artwork is featured in one of two exhibits greeting passengers and visitors at the Pittsburgh International Airport. The exhibits went on display just in time to welcome guests arriving for the recent G-20 Summit of world leaders held in Pittsburgh this fall.

An education student from Moscow, Pa., Keith's artwork is part of the "Urbanic 2: Catalyzing a Regional Economic Renaissance" exhibit. Following a competitive process, the Allegheny County Airport Authority selected the exhibit for the Airport Art Panel for Showcase G-20, an exhibit for the Pittsburgh Summit guests, which included some of the most powerful political and economic leaders in the world. On display through the end of the year, the exhibit is located in cases on the south end of the ticketing level of the landside terminal at Pittsburgh International Airport. Pittsburgh's Andy Warhol Museum was also selected for the G-20 exhibit, displaying 11 of Warhol's fine art prints and photographs of the artist taken throughout his life.

Represented by Mox Box Consulting, a Pittsburgh based arts management company, Keith is one of five artists included in the "Urbanic 2" exhibit. His two pieces, "Enriched" and "Coagulation," are silk screen print abstracts that incorporate rose window designs.

"Urbanic 2" presents artwork that documents the effects of time and history on specific neighborhoods and buildings in Pittsburgh. Through abstracted form, each artist presents where Pittsburgh has been and where it is going. Keith's work, with its use of spiritual visuals and biological metaphors, centers on healing as one of its primary themes.

Keith credits his time at Keystone College for playing a vital role in his development as an artist. "While my current body of work has been prompted by powerful events in my life, I wouldn't have been able to respond to those events without the foundation that Keystone provided," Keith said. "The faculty are incredibly skilled and knowledgeable in their fields. They have helped me cultivate a clear direction in my work, teaching me both discipline in my craftsmanship and confidence in my style and techniques."

KEYSTONE COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS

Keystone College has changed in many ways during its proud history, but its commitment to educational excellence has never wavered. The College is very fortunate to offer many scholarships, all created with one common purpose – to help the students of Keystone College. Without these scholarships, many Keystone College students would be unable to pursue a higher education.

During the 2008-2009 academic year, $557,000 in donor-based scholarship funding was awarded to Keystone students in good academic standing with a demonstrated financial need. Additional information, including the history of Keystone's endowed scholarships, as well as various planned giving options may be found under the Development section of the College's website, www.keystone.edu.

We ask you to continue our proud tradition by establishing a Keystone College Scholarship. By doing so, you will create an opportunity for a deserving student to enjoy the life changing opportunity of a college education.

New endowed scholarships may be established with a minimum gift of $10,000 and can serve as a lasting tribute to a friend or loved one. Interested donors may create and support an annual scholarship with a gift restricted to the named scholarship fund. Annual gifts average $1,000.

Questions or intentions to establish a scholarship or become a member of the College's Evergreen Society may be directed to:

Director of Donor Relations

KEYSTONE DONOR BASE CONTINUES TO EXPAND

The number of people giving to Keystone College continues to grow at an impressive rate. In fiscal year 2008-2009, 2,363 donors supported Keystone College, an all-time record. Over the past two years, we have had a 41.9 percent increase in donors.

Other key donor statistics include:

- The number of alumni contributing has increased 12.9% in 2008-2009 and 20% in the last 5 years.
- The number of friends contributing has increased 73.4% in 2008-2009.
- The number of parents contributing more than doubled in 2008-2009.

We offer our heartfelt thanks to everyone who supports Keystone College and its mission of providing a quality education to our students.

The Donor Report, a special edition to the Keystonian, is a publication of Keystone College's Division of Institutional Advancement. The magazine is provided free of charge to alumni and friends of the College. Articles represent the opinions of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the policies or positions of the College. This list recognizes gifts given between June 1, 2008 and May 31, 2009. We regret any inadvertent omissions and thank all of our contributors for their generosity.
